

Red Hungary Seeks $100 Million Loan From World Bank

Shattered Economy Needs Lift

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Dec. 25 (AP) — Hungary, its economy almost completely disrupted by the October peoples' revolt, is seeking a 100-million-dollar loan from the World Bank, it was reported here today.

The report said that a Hungarian delegation either had already departed or will leave soon for Paris to try to negotiate the loan with officials of the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development.

It was impossible to obtain confirmation of the report from sources in Premier Janos Kadar's Communist government, even more inaccessible today because of the Christmas holiday.

Need 400 Million
However, according to earlier reports, Hungarian economists already have advised the government that the nation's shattered economy would need aid to the extent of at least 400 million dollars.

The official Communist newspaper Nepszabadsag has predicted there soon will be 200,000 unemployed in Hungary due to the serious coal shortage and other economic ills.

The huge Csepel iron and steel works south of Budapest has closed down completely for at least ten days, putting 17,000 employees on half pay. There have been similar layoffs in other plants.

Nepszabadsag said only yesterday that Hungary would have to seek foreign loans, even from capitalist countries.

The Soviet Union has promised 700,000 tons of coal by the end of March to get factories in operation. The Hungarians also are trying to buy electric power from Austria.

Attend Services
Both Catholics and Protestants filled Budapest's churches today for Christmas services, walking past Russian tanks and armored cars to reach their places of devotion in some parts of the city.

The Communists, who once imprisoned Josef Cardinal Mindszenty, head of the Roman Catholic Church in Hungary, turned a blind eye to the Christmas observances and the laying of wreaths on the graves of rebel dead. They even permitted the broadcast of "Silent Night" last night.

Demos Urged To Await Ike

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25 (AP) — Sen. Sparkman (D-Ala.) said tonight that the Democrats in Congress ought to see what program President Eisenhower lays down before taking a stand of their own.

Sparkman, who is a member of the Senate Foreign Relations and Banking Committees, said in a radio interview:

"I would prefer to await the President's recommendations. . . I think it's an orderly procedure to await his recommendations, then to treat with them, to supplement them, to change them, to discard them, to do with them whatever we—the Democratic majority in Congress—think best."

See No Gag Rule
Sparkman also said he does not believe the Senate will change its rule on limitation of debate.

And if it doesn't make the change, he predicted the "so-called civil rights legislation" will not be passed.

Sparkman further said he hopes Congress will vote to provide federal aid for education, to perfect the farm soil bank plan, and to revise housing legislation.

In a discussion of foreign policy, Sparkman said he thought the Eisenhower administration's handling of the Middle East crisis "has been tragically bad."

A group of Northern and Western Democratic senators has laid plans for changing the Senate rules in an attempt to prevent the practice of filibustering a bill to death.

Southern Democrats, who have used the filibuster device to defeat various bills for federal legislation in the field of civil rights, are out to keep the rules as they are.

Blast Causes Heavy Loss

DALLAS, Dec. 25 (AP) — An explosion rocked a warehouse of the Yellow Transit Co. today, sending flame 200 feet into the sky and causing damage estimated at nearly two million dollars. No one was injured.

The blast was followed by a series of explosions from truck gasoline tanks and stored paint. Smoke from the flaming asphalt roof of the rambling building was visible for miles.

Chief Economic Planner Fired By Soviet Russia

MOSCOW, Dec. 25 (AP) — The Soviet government tonight ousted Deputy Prime Minister Maxim C. Saburov as its chief economic planner and appointed in his place another deputy premier, M. G. Pervukhin.

The action followed by one day sharp criticism of the nation's economic planning by the Central Committee of the Communist party, which attacked the emphasis on certain sectors of the five-year plan and ordered it changed.

(Pervukhin was reported last September by Yugoslav Communists to be among a Kremlin faction opposing Soviet party boss Khrushchev in his policy of relaxing slightly the Soviet grip on the satellites in order to cultivate good relations with Yugoslavia President Tito.)

Second Change
(The change was the second in the Soviet government in a little over a month. On Nov. 21 former Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov, who also has been reported in the anti-Khrushchev faction, was made head of the Ministry of State Control. The title could cover the powers of a mere auditor and bookkeeper or of far-ranging authority to put a finger in nearly any government function, depending on his backing and ability to initiate action.)

The announcement of Pervukhin's appointment to revamp the Soviet Union's economic thinking was made in a decree of the U.S.S.R. Council of Ministers appointing him chairman of the State Economic Commission.

There was no indication in the announcement of any change in Saburov's position as deputy premier and member of the ruling Presidium of the Communist party.

In support of the new economic planner, the decree named six vice chairmen of the Soviet Council of Ministers as deputy chairmen of the State Economic Commission—all recognized as experts in industry and agriculture.

POLIO VICTIM Eleanor Pesca, 4, gets sendoff from nurses as she leaves the New York University-Bellevue Medical Center's Institute of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation, New York, to spend Christmas at home. Eleanor's wheelchair is laden with toys. Her treatment was provided for by March of Dimes. She will return to the hospital after the holidays.

Nixon Appeals For Refugee Aid

NEW YORK, Dec. 25 (AP) — Vice President Richard Nixon, fresh from an on-the-spot inspection tour, urged the nation tonight to double its contributions for Hungarian refugee relief. He spoke briefly from Washington on a special Hungarian relief show carried by all major television and radio networks.

"We need to do twice what we have already done," Nixon said.

Christmas
Nixon said his experience in Austria was an "unforgettable" one and he found it difficult to find words to express his feelings.

"What they did in Hungary," he said, "really marks the end of international communism."

Nixon said that although the United States has already admitted 21,000 refugees "we need to do more."

There are some things, however, Nixon added, that the government can't provide and it is here that the volunteer organizations with their care and personal touch are needed.

Every place he went in Austria, Nixon said, the refugees asked him to "tell the people of America thanks for what they have done."

The hour-long show featured some of the top names in show business. The networks combined to carry it on behalf of the American Red Cross, CARE, Church World Service, Catholic Relief Services and the United Jewish Appeal.

E. Roland Harriman, head of the Red Cross promised that the Red Cross would "stay on until the job is done if you give us the money to do it."

"I have been a good con except for one little caper with a bum beef. And Santa Claus would you please not send my profligate anything for Xmas because he is always being and gets me in trouble."

"I love you Santa Pinky A."

Good Morning!
"What is a monologue?"
"A conversation between husband and wife."

"I thought that was a dialogue."

"No, a dialogue is when two persons are conversing."

Negroes Defy Segregation Rule
TALLAHASSEE, Fla., Dec. 25 (AP) — Tallahassee Negro leaders tonight announced members of their race will continue sitting where they please on buses in spite of a City Commission order that segregation be restored.

Negroes, many of whom stayed off buses here for seven months, ended the boycott Christmas Eve. They said they acted under a U. S. Supreme Court ruling outlawing bus segregation in Montgomery, Ala.

18 Highway Deaths Noted In State

By The Associated Press

THE DEATH toll on Pennsylvania highways and roads mounted to 18 last night in the waning hours of the four-day Christmas holiday weekend.

Eight persons were reported killed in other accidents in the Keystone State.

Snow in northwestern Pennsylvania and falling temperatures slicked the roads into potential death traps as thousands sped home after holiday vacations or visits with relatives and friends.

Speeds on the Pennsylvania Turnpike in the Philadelphia area were cut to 35 miles per hour.

Erie and Mercer counties reported a one-inch snowfall and blizzards in Uniontown and Greensburg made highway traffic perilous.

Throughout the state the mercury plunged below the freezing mark Christmas night, with temperatures in the low 40's predicted for today.

Eisenhowers Mark Holiday With Family

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25 (AP) — Christmas was a family day at the White House today, with President and Mrs. Eisenhower's grandchildren the stars of the show.

Maj. John Eisenhower, the President's son, his wife Barbara, and their four youngsters drove to the executive mansion from nearby Ft. Belvoir at mid-afternoon.

"Granddad" Eisenhower went outside the White House to meet them. Then the family went inside to open up presents before a gaily decorated Christmas tree and then to dine on turkey with all the trimmings.

Eisenhower was jauntily attired in blue-gray sport coat, blue-patterned bow tie, grey slacks and black moccasins. He was whistling a few notes of "Jingle Bells" while waiting in 40-degree weather for the family visitors. His wife Mamie was festive in a red and black chiffon dress under a red stole.

Children Arrive
Together with Mrs. John S. Doud, Mrs. Eisenhower's mother, the presidential couple beamed when son John's station wagon pulled into the driveway on the south side of the White House.

Out of the car piled David, 8, Barbara Ann, 7, and Susan who will be 5 Dec. 31. John Eisenhower, now 12, was in the car with them.

Barbara Ann, 7, and Susan who will be 5 Dec. 31, John Eisenhower, now 12, was in the car with them.

There was a round of Christmas kisses, and the President took baby Mary Jean in his arms. He chuckled at photographers: "Well, now I'm going to get my picture taken as a nursemaid."

David carried one of the presents Santa had delivered for him at Ft. Belvoir this morning. It looked like a toy space ship with launching installation.

David also told his grandfather he had been given a B-B gun, and out of his first five rounds "I got two bullseyes."

"Well, that's good," Eisenhower said.

Bulletin
ADELAIDE, Australia, Dec. 26 (Wednesday) (AP) — Low Road, the blond bomber from Down Under, got Australia off to a 1-0 lead in the Davis Cup challenge round today when he crushed Herbie Flam of Beverly Hills, Calif., 6-2, 6-3, 6-3.

Fatally injured was Mrs. Elsie Beelow, 54, of Minneapolis. In critical condition are Richard McRae, 59, of Palmdale, his wife, Martha, 58, and Fred Beelow, 58.

Three of the six passengers died. The other three are in critical condition.

Killed when the car went out of control on Angles Crest Highway in the Angeles National Forest were Kenneth McRae, 33, Palmdale, Calif., and his son, Bruce McRae, 8.

Most of them could not be identified immediately. There were no survivors. The DC-3 plane, lost on a regular Rome-to-Milan flight, smashed into an almost perpendicular rock wall at the 6,300-foot level Saturday.

Combat Mars Christmas
By The Associated Press

SOUNDS of combat clashed with the world's attempts to find peace and unity as another Christmas Day came to an end around the earth.

There was bloodshed in Algeria, where Arab nationalist loosed a new wave of bombings and shootings against the French and their supporters, killing at least 14 persons.

There was division in Indonesia, where President Sukarno proclaimed a state of siege over parts of the key island of Sumatra in his efforts to quell an army revolt.

On Cyprus, underground leaders renewed their pledge to combat British rule.

Thousands Sing Thanks For Freedom

CAMP KILMER, N. J., Dec. 25 (AP) — Hungarian refugees marked their first Christmas in freedom today by thanking God for their blessings and prayed for the deliverance of their countrymen from tyranny.

And their lucky children — who had observed the traditional Hungarian St. Nicholas Day Dec. 6 — discovered America is twice blessed: Santa returns Dec. 25.

Nine vans loaded with gifts — toys and clothes, goodies and necessities — were distributed to some 5,200 children and adults. More than twice that number have passed through this former Army camp on their way to new lives.

10,000th Arrives
The 10,000th refugee arrived sometime on Christmas Eve but his identity couldn't be learned immediately.

Gov. Robert B. Meyner toured the camp today and then gave Santa an assist in distributing the presents near a 40-foot Christmas tree.

Every refugee on the post also received a personal welcome message on White House stationery from President Eisenhower. It was addressed to, "My friends from Hungary."

"The circumstances that have separated you from your homeland and your loved ones fill American hearts with deep emotion and with compassion for what you are enduring," the President wrote. "We feel a solemn and responsible pride that in your time of need you have come to our shores."

"Through the centuries the Hungarian people have bravely resisted oppression. Their courageous spirit continues today to inspire free people everywhere."

Offer Assistance
"It has been our American heritage to assert our individual freedom and to offer to other people, struggling for their own liberty as we once did, such assistance and asylum as we can . . ."

To those who may someday wish to return to a free Hungary, the President gave these assuring words: "America will do its best in helping you return."

Those receiving the letter included 21 Hungarians who felt especially close to the President—they had arrived here early to-day aboard his personal plane, the Columbine.

The Columbine had flown India's Prime Minister Nehru to London and on his return trip picked up the refugees at Munich. While flying over Boston at 6 a.m. crewmen presented the 13 children and eight adults aboard presents on behalf of the President and the crew.

Car Goes Over 500-Foot Slope; Three Killed
PASADENA, Calif., Dec. 25 (AP) — An auto blew a tire and plunged down an embankment today, scattering dead, dying and injured—along with brightly wrapped yule gifts—down a precipitous 500-foot slope.

Three of the six passengers died. The other three are in critical condition.

Killed when the car went out of control on Angles Crest Highway in the Angeles National Forest were Kenneth McRae, 33, Palmdale, Calif., and his son, Bruce McRae, 8.

669 Lives Lost On Highways, 162 Elsewhere

By The Associated Press

THE BLOODIEST yuletide America has ever known on the highways smashed two all-time records for any holiday weekend and the National Safety Council's prediction that 660 persons would die in traffic accidents.

Nor was the count complete. By midnight, EST, 669 had been killed on the streets and highways since 6 p.m. local time Friday. Another 47 died in fires during the 102-hour period, and 115 in a variety of accidents for an overall toll of 831.

The books had closed on accidents only in the Eastern time zone, and the millions of motorists returning from Christmas trips still had one to three hours to add to the gory total in the other three zones. In addition, the usual straggling reports of accidents within the accepted holiday period could raise the total to near 700.

Ned H. Dearborn, president of the National Safety Council, called the fulfillment of the council's forecast a "bitter disappointment."

Old Record Of 609
The old record already beaten was 609 traffic deaths, set in the three-day Christmas period of 1955. The old record for all accidental deaths in any holiday was 789, set in 1951's four-day Christmas weekend.

In the first 10 months of 1956 traffic deaths in the United States averaged 106 a day. An Associated Press survey during a nonholiday period, from 6 p. m. Friday to midnight Tuesday of the Dec. 14-18 weekend, showed 500 traffic

Boy Regains Consciousness
HAZLETON, Pa., Dec. 25 (AP) — Fifteen-year-old Donald Drumheller, unconscious for 21 days, opened his eyes Christmas Eve.

The youngster, who lives at Shepton, six miles from the anthracite city of Hazleton in Eastern Pennsylvania, was found "lying on a road atop his bicycle last Dec. 3. Police theorized he was the victim of a hit-run driver."

Last night at 7 p.m., Donald awakened. His older sister and brother were at his bedside. Told it was Christmas Eve, the youth said he hoped Santa Claus had brought him a wrist watch.

He was permitted to open many presents which had been placed at his bedside by family, physicians, nurses and business people in the hopes he would regain consciousness in time for Christmas.

Hospital authorities today described his condition as "improved."

21 Persons Die In Plane Crash

Own Gun Fells Triple Killer
EL RENO, Okla., Dec. 25 (AP) — Two men, tending cattle before a Christmas family reunion, were shot down by a drunk-crazed killer yesterday—the second and third victims of a 24-hour crime spree that ironically saw the gunman felled accidentally by his own gun.

James Leroy Neal, 6-foot, 200-pound Negro, died last night at the end of a 100-mile-an-hour chase when one of six guns he had in his car discharged after his stolen vehicle crashed into a ditch 10 miles west of here. It was near where the men were found dead.

The bodies of Francis Elmenhorst, 29, El Reno farmer, and his cousin, Glenn Berneston, 37, Tulsa, Okla., were found last night after Neal's death.

The first victim was Scott Smith, 37-year-old Hinton farmer and father of four children, shot down in his home about midnight Sunday.

Area's Lawmakers Should Take Lead In Banning Billboards On New Roads

Pennsylvania's Legislature will meet next week, and one of the first things it should consider is how to prevent billboards from blighting the state's portion of the federal highway program.

The U.S. Congress is not expected to do anything about the problem. A powerful lobby is ready to oppose any billboard ban. So, if the natural beauty of Pennsylvania's new highway is to be preserved, the State Legislature will have to act.

In addition to billboards, we will be threatened with a mushroom growth of cheap roadside stands at entrances, exits and interchanges of the interstate, limited-access superhighways. That condition, too, must be prevented.

This is a movement which can be endorsed and supported by both Gov. George M. Leader and the Republican-controlled House and Senate. They may be expected to disagree on other matters, but on the problem there can be no reasonable grounds for argument.

Since the Pocono Mountains are frequently referred to as "Pennsylvania's Picturesque Playground," it would be fitting if the area's two Republican lawmakers, Sen. William Z. Scott and Rep. Harford L. Cleveland, were to become prime movers in a movement to ban the billboards and honky-tonk stands.

The Legislature will have to find a speedy solution if Pennsylvania is to prevent a strangulation and blighting of its new high-speed roads. All areas of the state will be watching with interest.

Important Details Concerning Chou Left Unsaid By Indian Prime Minister

Jawaharlal Nehru, the man who has expressed an ardent desire to be a "link between peoples who do not have such links," told Americans before he left this country what it was that Chou En-lai discussed with him during the Red Chinese premier's visit in New Delhi.

Chou's feelings are hurt, apparently, by this country's inaction in bettering the strained relations between the United States and Red China. He told Nehru that his country "had gone several steps forward" in trying to improve relations between the two nations.

Pandit Nehru did not go into the matter of what "steps" Chou meant.

Could it have been Red China's attitude towards the American prisoners it holds, releasing a few at a time and trying to use the rest to blackmail us into recognition of the Communist nation and acceptance of it as a U.N. member?

Could it have been Red China's aggression in Korea which cost the lives of so many American and other U.N. troops?

Could it have been Chou's reported offer to intervene with his Russian pals on behalf of the Hungarians, if we didn't block his country's entry into the U.N.?

Chou En-lai's government has acted consistently like a boastful robber who steals $100, returns $50 of that loot, and then brags what a wonderful fellow he is.

If Red China really wants to be accepted by the United States as a world government, it must come to the conference table with clean hands. To date, it has been an international blackmailer ready to concede only those advantages it never should have had in the first place.

Nehru's desire to be a link between the United States and Red China is a commendable one. It is a role that badly needs filling. But the strongest link is meaningless if one end of the chain is not willing to carry its responsibility.

George Sokolsky Says...

Oil Apparently Holds Peoples Together More So Than Either Race Or Religion

Oil is now a weapon of war not only as between Arab States and Western Europeans but also among the Arabs, between those who have do and those who do not have oil but over whose territory pipelines run. Thus, between Syria and Iraq there is bitterness for Syria has a sabotaged Iraq's pipeline and the Iraqis have been thinking of warlike acts to protect their pipeline and there is even some talk of running a line across to Turkey.

There was an Iraqi broadcast on this subject that is most interesting because it is so very human. Iraq went along with the other Arab nations until Syria cut the pipeline and then money talked and the Iraqis looked upon the Syrians as ingrates. Said the Iraqi radio:

"Responsible and unofficial Syrian sources are aware of Iraqi sacrifices for Syria during its struggle against French imperialism. They have not forgotten Iraqi aid on all occasions and under all circumstances. They remember the Iraqi stand in demanding the realization of Syria's sovereignty."

The tone is quite current and the Syrians probably answered, "True, but what have you done for us lately?" The Syrians have come under Soviet influence and therefore have a lessened admiration for private property. So the Iraqi accuse the Syrians of cutting off their noses to spite their faces.

"An Iraqi military expert previously explained the great damage and serious consequences resulting from the blowing up of oil installations in Syria and other places. The lack of oil during present circumstances will undoubtedly paralyze the Army's mechanized units and render most weapons useless, as well as bringing military movements to a standstill. Planes, tanks, trucks, guns, and other heavy and light weapons are useless without oil and its byproducts."

Despite all this, the Syrians continued to sabotage Iraq's oil and that made the Iraqis very angry, indeed. They asked, "Does not he who commits such an act harm himself, his country, and people before the enemy has an opportunity to attack him? Was not the demolition, destruction, and sabotage of oil installations high treason at a time when Arab Armies are stationed in the vicinity of these installations, not knowing when they will engage in battle with the treacherous and sinful enemy?"

And so it goes, accusations and recriminations and probably, in time, the imported weapons will be used, one against the other in the small wars that have racked Asia and Africa. Maybe these small wars do not count for too much, except for those who are killed in them and their relatives, but too many of them are occurring and the real danger is that one day a small war may become a great war. That is a real danger.

Arabs must be a curious people. Not a single Arab country came to Egypt's assistance until after the United States had intervened on behalf of Nasser. It is true that Syria and Iraq moved into Jordan's territory, but that seems to be leading to trouble between Syria and Iraq. Nasser is now a strong man because he was made strong by American support but the other Arabs apparently waited to see what would happen before they exhibited signs of Arab brotherhood.

That is perhaps an historical footnote worth looking at because there has, for several years, been an assumption of Arab unity, perhaps somewhat romanticized by Lawrence of Arabia, but how much unity is there actually, let us say, between the Iraqis and the Syrians? Is there as much unity as between the Norwegians and the Swedes or as much as between the British and the East Germans?

The latter question is somewhat interesting because how many of the peoples of East Germany are of the same basic stock as compose the English race? The Poles who are giving the Russians a bad time are Slavs but in Czechoslovakia where the Russians are having no trouble, there are large pockets of Germans or at any rate, peoples who regard themselves as Germans. Stalin was not a Slav at all; he was a Georgian, a very mixed race of Tatar origin, perhaps with Hittite thrown in. Who knows?

Is racial kinship a factor in these matters? If so, why did not the United States or Canada support Great Britain against Nasser? It is neither race nor religion that holds people together—it is apparently oil.

gin-mill operator with a child were directed."

This was a few nights before Christmas, Mr. Johnston, with the messages of love for children and the symbols of spiritual things heard and seen on all sides. This was the very hour when the love of kids was being pretty generally manifested. So I felt extra sorrowful and I wondered how things were with you, top man in the movie world, highly paid watchdog of pictures, and the man who is looked to by pop and mom for help. I guess I am not alone in my low spirits. (Yes, I know that Hollywood turns out some magnificent pictures, that "Ten Commandments" was being shown a stone's throw from the most condemned picture of the year, and that only a very few producers defy codes, public feeling, the churches, etc. But why make it easier for the few by loosening up the very codes they brush off? I don't dig it. Just a thick, old-fashioned parent, eh, Eric?)

Why A Wife's Christmas Gift Is Dancing Lessons

Gentlemen, how many of you raced to your Christmas stockings, hoping for a new set of shaving gear, finding instead a course of paid-up dancing lessons from the little woman?

Face up to reality, boys. You got a practical, much-needed gift. One that will put wings on your feet, give a lift to your drooping spirits and save wear and tear on feminine footwear. Dancing lessons—in your case aren't aimed so much at making you a lion with the ladies as keeping your own dream girl from fandangio frustration.

You don't object to brushing up on the two-step? Or the fox trot? Buddy, there is more to this dancing course than meets the instep. You are about to learn the cha-cha! And some good basic rumba—let the samba fall where it will.

Curious thing about American men. Eight out of 10 glare when the band rattles the maracas a second before breaking out with an unrecurrent of Latin rhythm. Our lads, if just finishing a waltz on the floor, will edge their partners back to the table. None of this gigoilo stuff for them! Looks kind of silly, maybe even silly, out there hopping around to a complicated beat they can't get the hang of.

The ladies are appreciative of a man who says plainly, "Let's sit down for gosh sakes. I can't rumba!" There are plenty of fellows who (1) don't know they can't rumba, (2) care less and (3) never heard of a cha-cha. These men march stolidly forth the length of the dance floor, one-two, unchanging in their demonstration of "having done the right thing." Waiting to music is enough. "And no partner ever complained about my dancing... except you!"

If your wife quotes the college president who urged his scholars to learn to dance, don't groan! Seems to me it was one of Harvard's educators who wisely remarked that if young men were limited to one course of study, he felt that dancing would be of most benefit to them. Harvard is notable for producing graduates who are handy with law, business, arts and sciences—but who can doubt that wizardry with the down-beat enhances a man's mental stature? Who knows what business promotions resulted from sailing through a waltz with the boss' wife?

Or what gentle arts of apology were polished to patina after whamming into a burly gent on the dance floor—and getting by with it? In other words, you can't dance well and fail to have the girls think you are just a great big wonderful guy. So... if you can't always believe your ever-loving wife, you can depend on Harvard. Those chaps are seldom mistaken.

Shall we crank up the violins, dear, and step off a few?

Try and Stop Me

—by Bennet Cerf

A very merry man lurched into Joe Finnegan's taxi at the New Rochelle, N. Y., station one night, gave an address, and promptly fell out of the opposite door into the roadway. Laboriously struggling to his feet, he said, "Shay, driver, thash purty fash work. How much I owe ya?"

A Seattle apartment prowler removed all the feathers from a parakeet, left it otherwise unharmed. The bird must take a pretty cold view of such shenanigans.

Robert S. Allen Reports

Senate To Invoke Cloture On Civil Rights Measure

Washington, Dec. 25 — The new Senate is headed for a surprising start.

Civil rights legislation is to be the first major issue taken up there.

As soon as the Senate gets down to business, Democratic leaders propose to bring up a three-point civil rights bill for the dual purpose of enacting it early in the session and ahead of the House, instead of the other way around.

That's what happened last Congress. The House passed such a measure in the final month, but it got deadlocked in the Senate Judiciary Committee. This time, the secret strategy of Senate Democratic leaders is to take the initiative on this thorny question and dispose of it as quickly as possible.

To this end, they are prepared to invoke cloture against a Southern filibuster.

They are privately claiming to have the necessary 64 votes (two-thirds of the full Senate) to limit debate. They say they are sure of 34 Democratic votes for cloture, and 39 Republican.

Highly significant is the fact that Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon Johnson, Tex., is actively participating in this extraordinary plans.

Also in the forefront are Senators Mike Mansfield, Mont., slated for party whip; Thomas Hennings, Mo., newly reelected chairman of the Civil Rights Subcommittee; and Hubert Humphrey, Minn., who accepted membership on the controversial National Democratic Advisory Committee.

The bill on which this unusual showdown will be fought is essentially the same passed by the House last summer. Its three main provisions are:

Establishes a permanent Civil Rights Division in the Justice Department. Headed by an Assistant Attorney General, this new agency would handle all federal civil rights cases.

Creates a six-member Commission with broad powers to investigate civil rights problems, and to submit reports and recommendations directly to Congress. Appointments to this Commission would be made by the President, with approval of the Senate.

Specific safeguards on voting rights, including the use of federal injunctions to prevent interference with balloting.

Under the plans of the Senate Democratic leaders the first important move in this eventful battle will be to ensure a favorable majority in the key Judiciary Committee, headed by Senator James Eastland, Miss., militant segregationist.

This will be done by offering the Democratic vacancy on this Committee to new Senator Frank Lausche, O., provided he votes with the Democrats to control the Senate.

The next step will be for Senator Hennings to hold several hearings on the proposed legislation, and then to recommend its approval to the full Judiciary Committee. It is to act expeditiously and report a bill to the Senate by the last week in January.

There, Senator Johnson would move to make it the pending business before the Senate—and the stormy fight will be on.

Several weeks will be allowed for any and all arguments. Then an effort will be made to reach a voluntary agreement on limiting debate and voting on amendments and the measure.

If that can't be done, the next maneuver will be cloture. Note: Early action on civil rights legislation is also being urged in the House. Representative Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.), chairman of the Judiciary Committee, is proposing this to Democratic Floor Leader John McCormack, Mass., and other party chiefs. Celler's plan is for his Committee to rush through the House's original bill, on the ground it already has been thoroughly considered, and then to press for a speedy vote in the House.

On The Hill — A good source for tickets to the Inauguration is Democratic members of Congress. They get as many passes as Republican members: 12 per senator and 8 for representatives. In the House, this allotment will give the Democrats 280 more tickets than the Republicans, because there are more Democrats in that chamber than Republicans. So if you're looking for a pass, the Democrats offer the best chance to get it.

You're Telling Me

Never again, says the man at the next desk, will he doubt the power of television. After getting a look at the National Auto show via TV his family's demand for a new car has gone into super high-gear.

The televising of the Auto show was the best "spectacular" yet—one that wasn't gummed up with corny jokes by alleged comedians.

The show features some 125 handsome, glamorous cars—what other production ever had such a large cast of breath-taking beauties?

Included in the exhibit are 65 glittering new trucks. These are so purty it seems a shame to take 'em out into the rain just to cart some beat-up old package to someplace else.

My New York

New York — It looks as if Judy Gregory isn't going to make it. Ah, well. Probably all for the best.

Miss Judy is a Michigan girl who started off in Coldwater and now has reached Ann Arbor, where she is wrapping up four years of college. She is 21, and going to be married, you should knock on wood.

It was just before her 16th birthday that Miss Judy, pleased with something this department wrote, sat down and penned a fan letter—that, it turned out, was more of a juvenile ache for the minarets and towers of Manhattan than anything else.

"I read everything I can get about New York," she cried out in her neat, respectable young girl's handwriting, "such I have several records such as Manhattan Serenade..." All through the letter, the ultimate end was clear. Miss Judy Gregory one day would bring New York to its knees. One day she would live on Central Park South and sup at the Plaza.

I sweated out what to tell her and finally, because this may be the one place in the world for the young to hurt, to laugh, to feel, to cry—I advised her to come here one day. Batten down the hatches, I told Miss Judy; grit your teeth and come along for the ride of your life.

The world, however, moves more prosaically. New York

Inside Washington

Ike Puts Reliance In Nixon

Washington — Tip-off on the increased reliance President Eisenhower will place on Vice President Richard Nixon in the next four years came this month when Nixon was given two key assignments.

The first was a major foreign policy speech, asserting the need for U.S. world leadership, before a trade association in New York. There was no question that Nixon was voicing the views of the President.

The other development came when Mr. Eisenhower dispatched the vice president on a flying trip to Austria to bring back an on-the-spot study of the Hungarian refugee program.

Political insiders won't say so publicly but they are convinced that the two developments are merely the beginning of a determined effort by Mr. Eisenhower to insure Nixon is his successor as the Republican presidential candidate in 1960.

Adlai's Word — Speaking of politics, even the most cynical of politicians believe Adlai E. Stevenson when he says he won't run for President again.

Ordinarily, such a declaration by any office seeker is hardly taken at face value, but in Stevenson's case, political experts are convinced he means it and will never change his mind.

One reason for this is the timing of the two-time loser's statement that he won't be a candidate for the White House ever again. It is pointed out Stevenson could have said nothing, leaving the door open for another try at the Democratic nomination and retaining some of the power that normally accrues to a presidential candidate, whether he wins or loses, on the chance that he might run again.

However, by announcing his intention just a month after the election, Stevenson has told other Democrats, in effect, that they can make any plans they care to about winning the 1960 nomination, without wondering whether or not he's in the race.

Atom Power Expansion — The Atomic Energy commission and Congress are expected to act promptly in approving a new program which calls for vast expansion and acceleration of atomic power for civilian use in the United States. The plans have been drawn up by AEC chief Lewis Strauss and he hopes to win unanimous approval of them in January.

The program, among other things, will call for construction of at least two new large-scale and three small-scale power reactors by June 30, 1962.

stayed here, sharpening its claws for Miss Judy, but she went on up to Ann Arbor and presumably cheered loudly against Michigan State for four seasons, discovered Rupert Brooke in English lit classes, engaged in the childish diodes of sorority life... and grew up.

Today came word from Miss G., on pink notepaper, after five years in limbo. She reminded me who she was and told me what had happened to her, and:

"The most significant thing of all is that last December I met a young graduate student in psychology who comes from Brooklyn, N.Y. On Oct. 5, my 21st birthday, he asked me to marry him."

There was more. Sometime this winter, Miss Judy and her young man are coming to New York, so she can meet his family. "I'm going to fly for the first time," writes Miss Judy, and you can see some of the old excitement in her, "and we have tickets for two Broadway shows, even if I never do anything else that the orthodox tourist does."

What exotic kind of tropical fish is this that Miss Judy has landed? A familiar type. Miss Judy has caught for herself a native New Yorker... and there isn't a native New Yorker alive who doesn't want to leave the place. She has reached onto one of those restless souls of the metropolis who, once he has seen green grass and a living tree in the outside world, somehow never will be satisfied again with the asphalt jungle.

"Probably we'll be in a small university town," adds Miss Judy.

Bartonsville Prayer Well Believed First In World

By Leonard Randolph
THERE ARE wishing wells all over the world, but it seems likely that Bartonsville has the first "prayer well" in the world.

In structure this covered well at which prayers are to be offered closely resembles a "wishing" well. But the man who made it says he is "very much" to trying to bargain with the Lord.

That man's name is Henry Rubino. The well is located on his property in the small Route 611

WELL WITH A DEEP THOUGHT is this one on the Henry Rubino farm at Bartonsville. Rubino built a shelter over an old well. Then, to keep visitors from mistaking it for a "wishing well," he put a sign on asking people to pray to God, instead. Unlike wishing wells, no coins are asked. All you have to do is say a prayer.

New York Police Step Up Search For 'Mad Bomber'

NEW YORK, Dec. 25 (AP)—As they have done more than 50 times in the past 16 years, police today intensified their search for New York's "Mad Bomber."

The latest example of the bomber's work was found by chance yesterday in a phone booth in the big public library at 42nd St. and Fifth Ave.

Queen Urges 'Room At Inn' For Refugees

SANDRINGHAM, England, Dec. 25 (AP)—Queen Elizabeth II appealed today for haven for peoples all over the world who have been driven from their homes by war or violence.

"We call them 'refugees,'" the 50-year-old sovereign said in her annual Christmas broadcast to the British Commonwealth. "Let us give them a true refuge. Let us see that, for them and their children, there is room at the inn."

Elizabeth pleaded for solidarity among the millions of people of the Commonwealth and for tolerance among friends, apparently with the view of further healing the Western rifts which arose over the British-French invasion of Egypt.

Family Of Nations

"We talk of ourselves as 'family of nations,' and perhaps our relations, one with another, are not so different from those which exist between the members of any family," she said. "We all know that there are not always easy, for there is no law within a family which binds its members to think, or act, or be alike."

"Deep and acute differences, involving both intellect and emotion, are bound to arise between members of a family, and also between friend and friend, and there is neither virtue nor value in pretending that they do not."

"In all such differences, however, there comes a moment when, for the sake of ultimate harmony, the healing power of tolerance, comradeship and love must be allowed to play its part." Canadians and Indians were among the Commonwealth critics of the Suez operation, along with the United States, Britain's most powerful ally.

The Queen read her message from a desk in the ground floor study of her country home here, in Norfolk County about 100 miles northeast of London. Two microphones picked up her words for radio relay around the world. She turned down requests to allow television cameras to cover the speech.

Rubino wondered for some time about what to do with the "old well" on the roadside across the highway from his farm. Finally—about two or three weeks ago—he got together some rough plank lumber and old stones.

Wishing No Answer
He built a foundation for the frame covering; then constructed a traditional shelter over the top of the well.

When the well-shelter was nearly finished, Rubino began to worry that people would think it was "another wishing well." He disliked the idea intensely, he said last night, and he had never felt that "wishing" was the way to accomplish anything.

Then he hit on an idea. Why not call it a well at which prayers could be said—a prayer well?

To avoid any possible confusion on the part of visitors, Rubino also painted a sign which has been put in a prominent position on the side of the shelter. The sign reads:

"Instead of wishing at this well, just say a prayer of thanks for His abundant gifts to you and feel His presence with you, too."

There is no "oaken bucket" or other container at the well, either. Instead, Rubino has suspended a tin plate from a chain attached to the top of the shelter.

This tin container is kept filled with food for wild birds. The combination bird sanctuary and well has attracted more than its share of both birds and human visitors, Rubino says.

Known To Birds

The birds have come to know the man so well, by now, that he can come almost up to the feeding pan without frightening any of them away.

Comments from persons who have stopped at the well have been very flattering and kind, Rubino says—"but you never know whether people are saying something just to be kind."

Rubino has never seen a well designed for prayer instead of wishing, before. But he hopes the idea grows.

It might be a good idea, he thinks, if more people around the world stopped "wishing" for things they probably will never need and start thanking God for the things they do need and the things they already have.

One of those things is the ability and desire to pray. And this is theirs, almost for the asking.

Fine Paid On Charge

KENNETH DICKSON, 24, of Delaware Water Gap, has pleaded guilty to a charge of disorderly conduct and paid $25 in fines and costs to Justice of the Peace Marshall Neyhart, East Stroudsburg. The charge stemmed from a fight outside Shaffer's Inn, East Stroudsburg, RD 2, last Friday night, in which John Fish 24, of East Stroudsburg suffered a large gash in the forehead and a broken nose.

However, contrary to first reports, no knife was involved in the fracas, Neyhart stated. The charge was preferred by Mrs. Josephine Shaffer, the magistrate added.

Parts have been analyzed and traced as far as dedicated ingenuity could trace them. But the Mad Bomber apparently is a long way from being caught. No one has been killed by the 23 bombs that have exploded. Many have been injured, though none seriously.

The bombs have gone off in lockers at railroad terminals, in several well-known movie theaters, and in several parts of Rockefeller Center. The last one to explode was in the Brooklyn Paramount Theater Dec. 3.

Pope Blesses Large Crowd On Christmas

VATICAN CITY, Dec. 25 (AP)—Pope Pius XII stretched out his arms and gave his blessing today to one of the greatest Christmas throngs ever to gather in St. Peter's Square.

While a soft December sun melted the old architecture of the basilica, the pontiff appeared at his window at noon and spoke the Latin words beginning "Et Benedictio Dei omnipotentis . . ."

More than 100,000 persons assembled below sent up thunderous shouts of, "Viva il Papa!"—long live the Pope—to the white-clad figure outlined in the window above.

The pontiff stayed at his window only two minutes. Then he retired to private Christmas observances with his own small family circle. This was the 18th Christmas benediction given by Pius XII.

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

It marks one of life's milestones, I guess—to reach the end of Christmas Day calm, rested and serene. It's a comfortable feeling but most unusual.

My earliest memories of Christmas involve waking before the dawn when the light seemed full of sparks, the air heavy with pine-scent, and the atmosphere itself charged with excitement.

It was an excitement that lasted the living day and brought you to night-fall as exhausted as a spent pin-wheel. In a big family Christmas dawn continues to come early and the excitement doesn't wane as you grow older because there are always younger children to rouse the household.

In a home of your own, you may see the Christmas dawn from the other end and usually do after the children arrive—because there's always something that has to be put together that won't go, and Santa Claus gets pretty weary waiting for over-excited children to go to sleep.

But not for long. I can remember when it seemed that we'd just closed our eyes before they were awake again. Even when they got old enough for midnight carolling.

Which is why it seemed so strange to wake naturally on Christmas morning. There was a different feeling to the house, to be sure, than just any day, but it was a kind of a glow to the air instead of that electric crackle. It's a glow that grew warmer as you realized that this year, the children were as interested in your reaction to what they gave as in their own to what they got.

You could go humming "all is calm, all is bright" through leisurely dinner preparations, and love every minute of the day and still feel mighty peculiar. It just doesn't seem natural to be woken at the end of Christmas Day.

son and Julie. Mr. and Mrs. Hallstead Ellison, and Loyde Ellison III, Mount Pocono.

Great-grandmother Mrs. Walter J. Naylor, of Scranton, and grandmother, Mrs. Violet Beseker, Mount Pocono, were unable to attend and sent gifts. Also Mr. and Mrs. John Sutton, of Mount Pocono.

Which is why it seemed so strange to wake naturally on Christmas morning. There was a different feeling to the house, to be sure, than just any day, but it was a kind of a glow to the air instead of that electric crackle. It's a glow that grew warmer as you realized that this year, the children were as interested in your reaction to what they gave as in their own to what they got.

You could go humming "all is calm, all is bright" through leisurely dinner preparations, and love every minute of the day and still feel mighty peculiar. It just doesn't seem natural to be woken at the end of Christmas Day.

Today's the day for leftovers but sometimes a tangy sauce can spark yesterday's pudding to even better-than-new. Hot turkey sandwiches with gravy, cranberry sauce, and salad can be climaxed with left over steamed pudding with a special lemon sauce.

The special sauce: Ingredients: 1/2 cup sugar, 2 tablespoons cornstarch, salt, 1 cup water, 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 2 tablespoons butter or margarine, 1 large orange, brandy flavoring.

Method: Stir sugar, cornstarch and a dash of salt together thoroughly in 1-quart saucepan. Add water gradually, stirring until smooth after each addition. Cook and stir constantly over moderate heat until thickened and clear. Remove from heat; stir in grated lemon rind, lemon juice and butter. Peel orange so no white membrane remains; cut sections away from dividing membranes; stir orange sections into sauce with any juice. Add brandy flavoring to taste. Makes about 1 1/2 cups.

Faithful Workers Class

The annual Christmas party of the Faithful Workers' Class of the Zion Reformed Church will be held Thursday night at the church. Secret pal gifts will be exchanged.

Frequent Critic Of American Diplomacy Becomes Japan's New Foreign Minister

By EUGENE KRAMER
TOKYO, Dec. 25 (AP)—Japan starts the new year with a foreign minister who is itching to become premier and who has frequently attacked American diplomacy.

But, Foreign Minister Nobusuke Kishi, at the age of 60, has gone out of his way to study English, and to meet Americans. He declared recently, "Our two nations — the United States and Japan — should never again become potential rivals or enemies, but go hand in hand."

Kishi, an affable man with buck teeth, has never held a diplomatic post. His reputation is that of an ambitious, brilliant politician who engineered the retirement of three premiers — wartime dictator Gen. Hideki Tojo, Shigeru Yoshida and — this month — Ichiro Hatoyama.

Seeks Premiership

Since last fall, he has made no secret that he wants to be premier, arguing that his age — 10 years younger than most rivals — is an asset. His performance as foreign minister is bound to be interpreted as designed to capture Premier Tanaka's place as soon as possible.

Kishi got his new job after losing out to Ishibashi by only seven votes in the Dec. 14 convention of the Liberal-Democratic party. Both Kishi and Ishibashi say there should be "adjustment of relations" with the United States on issues such as defense, and more trade with Red China and Southeast Asia.

Actually, outgoing Premier Hatoyama said the same thing two years ago. Since then Japan has adopted a much bolder front toward the United States and has doubled its trade with Communist relations seem no worse. Some observers feel they are better, as U. S. installations moved from city office buildings into the suburbs.

Kishi and Ishibashi both support U.S.-backed rearmament of Japan but want the Japan-U.S. security pact restudied.

Little Brother

The most frequent complaint from Kishi and other politicians is that their country gets "little brother" treatment from the United States, and is frequently disregarded or misunderstood.

The new foreign minister said recently that negotiating with the U. S. Embassy was ineffective, or "kakka soyo," which means literally, "like scratching itchy feet with shoes on."

As foreign minister, he may sanction a plan for sending Japanese citizens and Diet members to America to explore the two countries' mutual problems.

Future U.S.-Japanese relations will get off to a "clean slate" start in Tokyo, since seating of the new government coincides with appointment of a new American Ambassador, Douglas MacArthur II. The appointment was well received here.

East German Refugees 'Overlooked'

BERLIN, Dec. 25 (AP)—Thousands of refugees from Communist East Germany spent their holiday in bleak, crowded barracks today, their unhappiness sharpened by the feeling they are being passed over while the world's sympathies go to the Hungarians.

Many of those interviewed in one West Berlin camp, where some refugees have been living for months, mumbled the belief: "The Hungarians are getting preference for political reasons."

West German officials disagree. The Hungarians must seek a haven beyond their borders, they say, while the East German flight to the West is an internal problem for the German nation.

But one young German voiced the feelings of most of the refugees when he said, "We are forgotten. This Christmas the world thinks only of the Hungarian refugees."

Some of the East German refugees have spent months in primitive, unsanitary-looking camps waiting for their freedom air flight to West Germany. Now the prospects of new jobs and homes in the West look more distant. Thousands of Hungarians are clogging reception centers in West Germany that once took East German escapees.

While West Berlin enjoyed its most prosperous Christmas since prewar days, there was little to remind the more than 25,000 East German refugees in some 40 camps of the holiday season. The best that hard-pressed officials could do was to supply them with a little pocket money and a better than average meal.

Officials admit privately that the food normally is just enough for subsistence.

Refugee officials say they would welcome outside help to supplement the financial aid given by West Berlin and West Germany. Bad living conditions and lack of ways to keep busy have shattered refugee morale, they say.

More than a million East German escapees have passed through West Berlin centers since 1949. About 75 per cent of these have been flown out to new homes in West Germany. The others mostly have made new homes in West Berlin.

Siege State Is Decreed In Sumatra

JAKARTA, Indonesia, Dec. 25 (AP)—President Sukarno cracked down today on the military juntas which have seized control of most of Sumatra.

Sukarno proclaimed a state of emergency and siege in parts of that rich, restive land. He dismissed the leader of the army coup from his command and called on the other officers involved to restore local rule to the proper authorities.

He said they must keep out of politics. "Be good soldiers," he urged in a broadcast speech. "Follow my orders. Obey the government."

Bloodless Coup
The man he ordered fired was Col. Maludin Simbolon, who ousted the Jakarta-appointed governor of North Sumatra last Saturday in a bloodless revolt. That uprising came a day after one of Simbolon's subordinates, Lt. Col. Achmad Hussien, seized Central Sumatra.

Hints of trouble have arisen since in the south.

Simbolon had vowed his loyalty to Sukarno and to ex-Vice President Mohammad Hatta and advocated that they team up again in Indonesia's interests.

But he sought the ouster of Premier Ali Sastroamidjojo's government and a blazer voice for Sumatra's 12 million people in the conduct of their local affairs and the spending of their tax money.

Pilot Injured, Son Unhurt In Plane Accident

MULLICA HILL, N. J., Dec. 25 (AP)—A single engine plane crashed into a wooded area about 100 feet off High Street on the edge of town here today.

The pilot, Richard Smith, senior, 18 in Underwood Hospital in critical condition, while his four-year-old son, Richard, junior, a passenger, in the plane, emerged unscathed.

State police said the elder Smith walked three miles through woods and a swamp to the highway where he was picked up and given a lift to the hospital at nearby Woodbury.

Police found the child, lying on a seat his father apparently had taken out of the plane and placed the boy on until he could go for help.

Smith and the boy were enroute from Rocky Mt., N.C., to Edgemont Airport in their hometown of Ashland, N.J.

Little America Celebrates Christmas In Usual Way

WASHINGTON, Dec. 25 (AP)—The Navy dispatches from the antarctic reported today that Little America celebrated Christmas in the traditional way, with religious services and a turkey dinner.

Lt. Joe Grier of Gastonia, N.C., a layman, held the Christmas services because the base chaplain was 400 miles away at McMurdo Sound.

Enjoying the dinner served by Chief Commissaryman Tom Macinvalde of Ellenville, Miss., in the mess hall atop the Ross ice barrier, the men had a chance to reflect on progress made in the past year by Task Force 43 under Adm. George Dufek. It was a year ago today that task force ships penetrated the ice pack.

First Landing
Lt. Harvey Speed of North Muskegon, Mich., made the first aircraft landing at the site of the future science base at Byrd Station days before yesterday. He flew the same plane that made the first landing at the South Pole.

On the return trip, the plane's compass was not functioning properly, but Radioman Harold Schmidt of Grand Island, N. Y., aided the navigator by radar.

Nineteen Navy men driving the heaviest tractor train ever assembled in the antarctic arrived at Byrd Station day before yesterday. The tractor train arrived 18 days and two hours after departure from Little America. Chief Warrant Officer Victor Young of Wickford, R. I., said the men in the train just "didn't know when to quit."

Parties Held For Teachers And Ag Boys

NEWFOUNDLAND — Two
Christmas teas kept the junior and senior home economics girls of Greene-Dreher-Sterling Joint High School busy last week with preparations of refreshments and decorations for the tea tables.

The first tea, at which members of the faculty were honored guests, featured the singing of Christmas carols by a group of seventh grade girls. These faculty members were present: Mr. and Mrs. Leland
Cramer, Mrs. Allen Edwards,
Clayton Northup, Lean Shelbert,
Henry Arneberg, Jack Strupcew-
ski, John Tobey, Mrs. Carol Smith,
Wallace Wilder, Miss Ruth Mc-
Kinney, Mrs. Burton Carlton, Miss

White Rabbit Season Opens On Saturday

THE SNOWSHOE rabbit (varying hare) season opens Saturday,
Dec. 29 and ends Saturday, Jan.
5. Shooting hours are 7 a.m. to 5 p.m. all days of the season, except for the Sunday when game hunting is unlawful. The daily limit is two; the season limit is six.

Ground conditions in the rugged northern counties of Pennsylvania, home territory of most of the state's "white rabbits," will be a controlling factor in determining the total bag of this game animal.
On snow the winter coat of the hare blends with the white background, offering protection from natural enemies and making the ghostlike animal difficult for hunters to see. However, if there is no snow the dark background will show the hare up sharply, and small hounds will have little difficulty in training.

Snowshoe rabbits are not abundant in Pennsylvania as they were early in this century, when the brush stage forests provided ideal habitat for them. Maturing timberlands and overbrowsing by deer have caused a great reduction in the snowshoe population. Nevertheless, many hunters will enjoy the wide-circling chases these big-footed "rabbits" afford during the Holiday Season.

Red Sympathizer Admits Fires

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 25 (AP)—
An unemployed factory worker, who authorities say admits being a Communist sympathizer with a mission to destroy churches, has been held for grand jury action on charges of setting fire to three houses of worship.

Theodore Pravda, 35, of Trenton, appeared before Magistrate Albert
Cooper in a preliminary hearing
Saturday, about 12 hours after he was arrested.
